Daniel Dennett

One of our most important living philosophers, Dan Dennett is best known for his provocative and controversial arguments that human consciousness and free will are the result of physical processes in the brain. He argues that the brain's computational circuitry fools us into thinking we know more than we do, and that what we call consciousness — isn't.

This mind-shifting perspective on the mind itself has distinguished Dennett's career as a philosopher and cognitive scientist. And while the philosophy community has never quite known what to make of Dennett (he defies easy categorization, and refuses to affiliate himself with accepted schools of thought), his computational approach to understanding the brain has made him, as Edge's John Brockman writes, "the philosopher of choice of the AI community."

"It's tempting to say that Dennett has never met a robot he didn't like, and that what he likes most about them is that they are philosophical experiments," Harry Blume wrote in the Atlantic Monthly in 1998. "To the question of whether machines can attain high-order intelligence, Dennett makes this provocative answer: 'The best reason for believing that robots might some day become conscious is that we human beings are conscious, and we are a sort of robot ourselves.'"

Dr. Dennett, is scheduled to be TBCoR's keynote speaker at Clearwater on Darwin Day-2014 in February. Tickets will be on sale soon at many of our constituent organizations. Get yours now for the best pricing.

FLORIDA
FREETHOUGHT 2013
Building a Better Florida Through Diversity
November 2-3, 2013

FloridaHumanists.org

On November 2nd and 3rd, you can be among the expectant Floridians from all over the state who will be converging on Orlando for the Florida Freethought 2013 Conference.

Speakers include: Various Florida group leaders, an SSA panel with Florida students, James Randi, Dale McGowan, Dave Silverman, Seth Andrews, Nate Phelps, Jerry Dewitt, Darrel Ray, Sarah Morehead, Jennifer Hancock, Bridgett Crutchfield, Teresa MacBain, Dan Fincke, and Alix Jules.

Hear the Sunday Keynote by Dale McGowan The Heart of Humanism

Humanists have always been generous and compassionate. But until recently, the organized freethought community has been focused mainly on ideas and activism, while our generosity and compassion took place on the individual level, separate from our identity as humanists. A sea change in the movement is now making compassionate humanism a bigger part of what we do together as a community, and in the process changing the way we look at ourselves and our worldview.

This month (October 5th) We will start our new Humanist Reader's Theatre. Jackie Jordan, our Broadway connection, has agreed to direct and coordinate some fine and original presentations.

Plans are under way for the Readers' Theatre (The Humanist Hams?) to treat the group to their first presentation. This method is essentially an open book dramatic reading. No need to memorize or act out any action, though you may if you wish. Release your inner thespian! Anyone can do it; the more the merrier!

Our October meeting will be a double feature! One is a one act play written by our very own, Dorothy Wylie. This touching play is a combination of pathos and comedy; an aging couple facing the wife's onset of Alzheimer's and how they handle it. An appropriate material considering that November is the month dedicated to stamping out this disease.

The second feature is a vignette by James Thurber and presents another married couple with a completely different relationship and problem and the ending will amuse anyone with a sense of justice,...and humor.

Anyone interested in participating is urged to call Jackie Jordan, (727) 217-0915. The best time to call Jackie is between 5:00 P.M. and 7:00 P.M., leaving a message if necessary. Be sure to let her know what days of the week and times are best for you so she can plan rehearsals accordingly. Don't be shy, you know you'll like it! JJ

If both participants and audience enjoy this, we can produce several sessions a year.

Food: the first kindness. Humanists aspire to true friendship with our fellow human beings.

An important measure of this concern is care for the physical well being of others. As reactionaries in congress vote to cut the budget for food stamps and other key supports, there is increasing hunger here in our community. Don't forget to bring canned and boxed food (before the expiration dates) or checks for TBH. Thanks to Glenn Paul, chair

Volume 21 No. 10 October, 2013

For November, we will hear from author, Clair Conner on the imminent danger of right wing extremism. In her new book, Wrapped in the Flag, she discusses her family's history of involvement with the birth of the radical John Birch Society. Her story provides a unique insight into our country's political culture.

Beacon Press is an independent publisher of serious non-fiction and fiction. Our books often change the way readers think about fundamental issues; they promote such values as freedom of speech and thought; diversity, religious pluralism, and anti-racism; and respect for diversity in all areas of life.

Get your copy of Wrapped in the Flag at any of the links below, or at the meeting.
Amazon Barnes and Noble Indie Bound

Wrapped in the Flag chronicles the radical right wing world of the 1960s when conspiracy ruled and the John Birch Society made national headlines. The daughter of a John Birch Society leader, Claire introduces us to the extreme ideas of a powerful political fringe group dispensing radical solutions to America's problems.

Birchers fought civil rights, labor unions, environmental protections, Medicare, welfare programs, the United Nations and even water fluoridation. Today, the society continues many of those same campaigns from its national headquarters in Appleton, Wisconsin.

Claire Conner's intimate account—based on records, documents and her firsthand knowledge—takes us deep inside one of the most radical right-wing movements in U.S. history. Moving seamlessly between memoir and history, humor and pain, past and present, Wrapped in the Flag serves up keen insight into the impact of extremism on one woman, her family and, if unchecked, on our country.

open discussion.

Saturday,

Following our meeting, many of us will dine and argue together at the Greek City Cafe,

Humanists work to build a world in which happiness is the enduring criterion of social policy.

What is the Humanist Way?

1. To extend a human centered approach to the critical problems of life and society.
2. To encourage attitudes of kindness, compassion, tolerance and a loving generosity in human relationships, and in our treatment of all life. These attitudes help us to see ourselves in the lives of others and encourage appreciation for the remarkable diversity of human culture and experience.
3. To develop and popularize the skills of creative and critical thinking that empower people to challenge prejudice, superstition and irrationality in every area of life. Such empowerment enables the individual to reach the highest levels of achievement.
4. To exalt those artistic and imaginative expressions of life which have been the source of the greatest pleasure and enlightenment, and which reflect compelling human truths. Through music, literature, art, dance, and other expressions, we embrace the essence of what it means to be human.
5. To explore the grounds of ethics and morality within the unfolding history of our evolving culture. Such knowledge will enable us to become effective protagonists for the happiness of the individual person. JP

The Movable Feast: the Humanist Society monthly social Dinner

The Moveable Feast for October will be at:

Carmelitas

Sunday October 20th at 5:00PM located at 7705 Ulmerton Rd. at its intersection with Belcher Rd. in Largo.

This restaurant has many fine offerings in the $11-15 range. It has been named top Mexican restaurant in the area many times.

Please reserve with Glenn Paul at 727-595-3347 or email kpaul29@tampabay.rr.com reply by Saturday October 19th.

Hope to see many of you there. Note: Look for possible coupons in your mail for Carmelita's.

Laugh Lines Why Teachers Drink

The following questions were set in last year's examination These are genuine answers (from 16 year olds).....and they WILL breed. (scary, ain't it?)

Q. Name the four seasons?

A. Salt, pepper, mustard and vinegar

Q. Explain one of the processes by which water can be made safe to drink A.

Flirtation makes water safe to drink because it removes large pollutants like grit, sand, dead sheep and canoeists

Q. How is dew formed?

A. The sun shines down on the leaves and makes them perspire

Q. What causes the tides in the oceans?

A. The tides are a fight between the earth and the moon. All water tends to flow towards the moon, because there is no water on the moon, and nature abhors a vacuum. I forget where the sun joins the fight

Q. What guarantees may a mortgage company insist on?

A. If you are buying a house they will insist that you are well endowed

Q. In a democratic society, how important are elections?

A. Very important. Sex can only happen when a male gets an election

The Kochhar Humanist Education Center hopes to impact the level of community activism among chapters and affiliates of the American Humanist Association by providing case studies and citizen action guides; they bring to light issues on minority religions and ethnicities that humanist chapter members may not have considered before. It will also expand existing efforts like Essays in the Philosophy of Humanism and utilize other resources in working to eliminate the pernicious effects of ignorance and discrimination.

National Secular Movement Update

The Secular Coalition for America has announced a strategic partnership between the Richard Dawkins Foundation for Reason and Science U.S. and top leadership of the Secular Coalition for America, through the remainder of 2013.

The partnership aims to maximize the strengths of both organizations-drawing on the Secular Coalition's strong nonprofit and strategic planning experience and the Dawkins Foundation's strong web and social media savvy, scientific expertise, and broad outreach. For more information about this exciting new partnership, click here.

Tune in for the best 30 minutes in secularism! The weekly National Movement Call is taking a break this month, but will be back in September. Call in every Thursday at 12:00 pm EST to get all the latest news in our movement from the movers and shakers themselves.

Freethinkers@USF is a multicultural, interdisciplinary student society which welcomes USF students who describe themselves as atheists, agnostics, skeptics, freethinkers, humanists, or religiously open-minded who seek to promote reason, compassion, tolerance, and free inquiry on campus. We hope to contribute opportunity for interdisciplinary dialog to the USF community, and build scientific literacy for all to enable objective and rational interpretations of issues affecting our lives. The organization is open to anyone of any religious persuasion or personal beliefs. Write Rodrick Colbert or freethinkersusf@gmail.com.

Florida Now

<http://www.flnow.org/>

NOW is a multi-issue political organization. NOW's self-defined role has been to initiate change for the benefit of the greatest number of people, to affect the legal and institutional structures of the society in a way that systematically expands the choices and possibilities available to all women. In this way, NOW takes action to bring women, as a class, into the mainstream of society, rather than offering aid to individual women in achieving personal solutions or temporary relief from oppression.

The Florida National Organization for Women (NOW) is in strong opposition to the Personhood Amendment ballot initiative for which the organization Personhood Florida is currently collecting signatures, according to Florida NOW president Donna Slutiak. "This amendment is ridiculous and an insult to women," Slutiak said. "The issue of Personhood would have very far reaching results, and would do more than criminalize abortion; it would also make birth control pills and the IUD illegal in the state of Florida. The amendment states that human life begins at the time when an egg is fertilized, which will also impact in-vitro-fertilization clinics. How would you like your mother's fertilized eggs that are sitting in a clinic freezer to have inheritance rights? Do you want to have to go underground to get your birth control pills?" Florida NOW expects all intelligent people to pledge not to sign this initiative, and to vote against it, if by some fluke it does get on the ballot. Personhood is bad for womanhood."

"...being a Humanist means trying to behave decently without expectation of rewards or punishment after you are dead."

Civil liberties news in the Sunshine State

Dear ACLU Supporter,

This year, the United Nations Human Rights Committee will be conducting a review of civil liberties in the United States to verify our compliance with the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights (ICCPR).

People Over Politics

Topics covered will include voting rights, juvenile justice and criminal justice. The ACLU of Florida has been deeply involved in these issues. That's why we're hosting a series of forums on the ICCPR and the human rights issues under review. See our website for more on this process:

We remember Thom Foley, Pinellas County ACLU chapter president; a wonderful human being, who died unexpectedly September 26th 2013.

The Humanities Institute of USF is excited to share our Fall 2013 newsletter and calendar of events. Inside you can read about our incredible lineup for this semester including: An evening lecture by Lawrence Krauss on Nov. 12th as part of our focus on "Science and Society."

Krauss is a leading cosmologist and Foundation Professor in the School of Earth and Space Exploration and Inaugural Director of the Origins Project at Arizona State University. He also costars with Richard Dawkins in the upcoming film, The Unbelievers.

Secular Coalition for America President, David Niose Wednesday presented oral arguments to the Massachusetts Supreme Court, as the attorney for the plaintiff in the case "Doe v. Acton-Boxborough Regional School District." The case challenges a state law that requires daily school-sponsored and teacher-led classroom recitation of the Pledge of Allegiance. Niose, on behalf of his client, argued that the wording "under God" in the Pledge discriminates against atheists and other nonbelievers, by instilling and defining patriotism according to a god belief.

For several years now, various leaders of the Freethought community in the bay area have been meeting informally to share experiences, and occasionally to coordinate plans. But recently, changing circumstances have brought additional pressure to cooperate in bringing programs and members services to an expanding movement.

At this point leaders continue to meet, and together with the various boards of directors and committees, try to develop policies that will enable every group to enhance its unique role in serving its members.

There appears to be general agreement on developing several community wide programs over the year that will allow significant speakers to be presented in our area. The costs of these programs will be shared among the organizations proportionally.

Thus substantive and exciting new activities will be offered to the Tampa Bay area that were not possible for most organizations before.

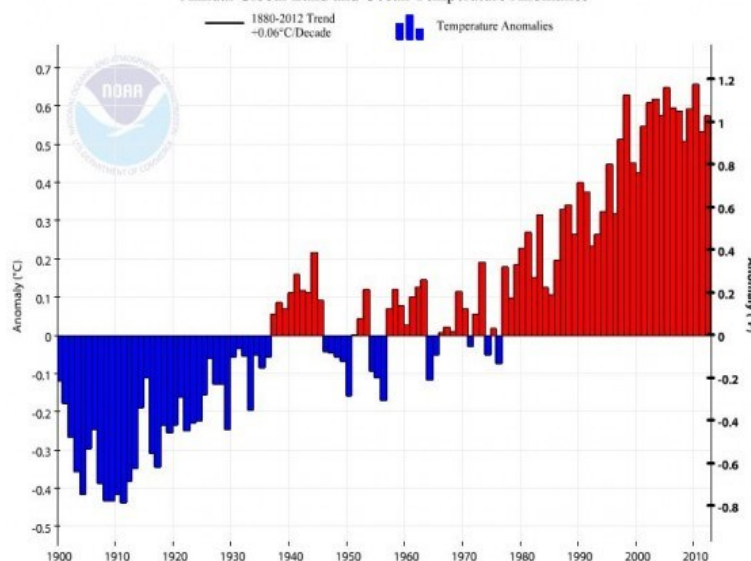

We are especially grateful to the national office of the United Coalition of Reason and its director, Fred Edwards. You may recall that UCoR was the major impetus to getting a large number of billboards erected across the nation with such messages as "You can be good without God. Millions are!"

TBCoR is an alliance of groups identified with the freethought / Humanist /Atheist movement.

As this momentum continues to grow, we will keep you informed of developments. JP

Annual Global Land and Ocean Temperature Anomalies

Urgency builds for action on Climate Change Issues

This graph, from NOAA, plots how global temperatures each year are different from the average, and the steady increase in temperature is plain. The upcoming IPCC report will also forecast that the globe will continue to warm, alarmingly so, unless we slow and reverse the current pace of global carbon emissions.

We are coming to the realization that our place in this universe is tenuous, and very much contingent on a happy and unusual set of natural circumstances that allow for an intelligent species like ours to come into being. But it is all too easy to see the limits of our intelligence, as we ignore our looting of the planet's resources and our profligate disruption of the natural systems that brought us into being.

But for all our wanton indifference to the material basis of our civilization, it is still possible for us to enjoy a decent way of life for all people without inflicting upon ourselves the conditions of our own destruction. Accomplishing this would not preclude an end brought by other sources, but at least we will not be the instrument of our own destruction.

Learn more about these issues. The Post Carbon Council (above) provides many links to fuller understanding. JP

The Military Association of Atheists and Freethinkers

Nontheistic service members serve honorably throughout the world—always have; always will. However, nontheists are the last unprotected minority. The nontheistic, whether an atheist, humanist, agnostic, freethinker, or other secular minority, have a strong community.

Jason Torpy, a West Point graduate, serves as president of MAAF. He also holds seats on the boards of the Secular Coalition for America and the American Humanist Assoc.

Humanist Families of Greater Tampa

Jennifer Hancock started this organization several years ago. It uniquely serves Humanist families with a variety of wonderful programs throughout the year.

There is a strong emphasis on creative childrearing. Here, you can make connection with other families dealing with the problems of living in a society that is still hostile to an explicitly Humanist Way of life.

Jennifer is author of several books including; The Humanist Handbook, The Humanist Approach to Happiness, and her latest book, The Bully Vaccine (illustration below). - JP

See much more at: www.Jen-Hancock.com,

Humanist Families organizes social outings every month. These are opportunities to do something fun, socialize and enjoy each other's company. Sometimes we go to a park, sometimes a museum, sometimes we go swimming. Our group has grown over the past year to the point we now organize Tampa area outings and Manatee/Sarasota area outings every month.

Throughout the year we host parties like Darwin Day in February, World Humanist Day in June, Freethought Day at Disney in October and Carl Sagan Day in November.

Among our spin off groups, is a Parenting Beyond Belief group which gets together to discuss the challenges of raising children without religion. We are on Facebook at: <http://www.facebook.com/groups/HumanistFamiliesTampa/>

Neuroscience and Humanism

Did you know you are your connectome? Your connectome - according to neuroscientist Sebastian Seung - is how your brain's cells connect and talk to one another. This essentially means that conscious experience is both a product of nature and nurture. See Sebastian's wonderful Ted Talk here: http://ted.com/talks/sebastian_seung.html

The study of neuroscience is of great interest to most humanists. Not just because we are intellectual geeks who love to learn geeky new sciency things. But also because our brains is where most of our thinking happens. (Most because our neurobiology is actually spread out around our bodies and that impacts our thinking as well. Check out this article on how the vagina and the brain conspire to create consciousness) And yes, I'm betting that pretty much all of you will click on that link. ;D

The reason neuroscience is so interesting to me is because it cuts to the heart of what it is to be human. Our ability to think, feel, experience and be conscious is both a function of and dependent on our neurology. If it turns out that consciousness is an illusion, does that mean we have no free will? And if we have no free will, how can a philosophy, like Humanism which is dependent upon us having free will, claim to have anything useful to say about how we should try to behave?

Adam Gopnik of The New Yorker, reviewed several neurology books on this topic -see: http://www.newyorker.com/arts/critics/books/2013/09/09/130909crbo_books_gopnik). It's a delightful read to catch up on what has been going on and the debates about free will that are occurring within the field of neurology. But I'm mostly referring you to it because Adam concludes that Humanism has nothing to fear from the demystification of the brain: "Humanism not only has survived each of these sequential demystifications; they have made it stronger by demonstrating the power of rational inquiry on which humanism depends. Every time the world becomes less mysterious, nature becomes less frightening, and the power of the mind to grasp reality more sure. A constant reduction of mystery to matter, a belief that we can name natural rules we didn't make—that isn't scientism. That's science."

I don't know about you but I get excited whenever I see someone talking about Humanism in a major magazine especially when the topic is so relevant to our concerns as Humanists.

Enjoy.

If someone asked you today what you wanted more than anything else JP in life, what would you say to them?

We want not only to explore the good life, but more importantly how to obtain and maintain it. Throughout history there have been all sorts of notions as to how we can achieve the two prime goals in human existence (and the answer most often given to the question above): Happiness and Inner Peace.

Can we find this inner Shangri-La through Jesus, Allah, Yahweh, Scientology, Hedonism, Asceticism, Atheism, No-ism? What are the basic structures of joy? Which path shall we take? How can we guide our children? These we believe are the most important questions human kind can attempt to answer. Equally important is how we can become a better role model and teacher for our children in their quest for a better life.

Two major areas will be the foundation for this section: One cerebral and one experiential. The cerebral area will largely come from the rational and scientific base of the Cognitive Behavioral approaches to mental health and well-being. The grandfather of these approaches was Dr. Albert Ellis, a pioneer who broke from the shackles of psychoanalysis and Freud to create the third major movement in Psychology. He called his reason/scientific-based approach Rational Emotive Behavior Therapy (or Theory). The experiential area will largely come from studies on mindfulness and from Zen. In a brief but very incomplete sense, Zen is a finger pointing at the human mind and reality. It is the reality of every moment "as it is" -- from the micro to the macro. From the tiniest subatomic particle to Galaxies circulating the Universe. This helps us put our problems and plights in proper perspective. It also humbles us and helps us to see that the only authority that anyone or anything has (including Religion and Science) is ultimately because of the power we give them.

Through combining these two wisdom-based approaches to epistemology comes a sense of Freedom -- a freedom that allows us to pause and choose our actions. When the actions that we take come from a center of good will, empathy, and compassion toward others, we create a morality that can be taught from generation to generation.

When we "react" to others from a set of fixed beliefs, we lose our freedom to choose and we become mired in a world of delusion and illusion becoming like automatons. As a result, our actions often come from ill will, greed, anger, hostility and intolerance. Others who don't hold our views or beliefs become our enemy and immoral behavior based in anger often follows.

Our overall goal is Freedom. Freeing the mind of the habits that create suffering and disturbance.

CFI Tampa Bay Member Completes Science and the Public Master's Program, Publishes Thesis

One of the most unique and instrumental features of CFI is its educational programs and resources. For instance, CFI partners with the Graduate School of Education of the University at Buffalo (UB) to offer the accredited Ed.M. program in Science and the Public. Through this online degree program, students examine the latest findings and techniques in science and technology and explore the broader philosophical, social, and cultural implications of the scientific outlook. One of our CFI Tampa Bay members, Jason Rodriguez, recently graduated from the Science and the Public program. When asked about his experience in the program, Jason stated, "The Science and the Public program is a truly unique graduate education experience. For anyone who is interested in science, the scientific method, critical thinking, current issues in science and technology, philosophy of science, and science policy, this is the degree for you. It's not only ideal for those who appreciate and advocate for science; it provides relevant, real-world tools for becoming a well-informed citizen and a better human being." As part of the program's culminating project, Jason completed a master's thesis entitled "American Science Advocacy Organizations: Examining Their Strategies and Engagements with Religion." In August, he successfully defended his thesis and had it approved for publication. Provided below is a summary of his thesis on this fascinating and controversial topic:

"The Science and the Public program is a truly unique graduate education experience...It's not only ideal for those who appreciate and advocate for science; it provides relevant, real-world tools for becoming a well-informed citizen and a better human being."

Over the past several decades, science advocacy organizations have increasingly participated in discussions of the relationship between science and religion to the public, mainly to counteract the resurgence of anti-evolution activities across the country, to address misconceptions and misunderstandings about science and religion, and to help make science more palatable and less threatening to religious believers. These engagements with religion have primarily involved four organizations: the American Association for the Advancement of Science (AAAS), the National Academy of Sciences (NAS), the National Center for Science Education (NCSE), and the Smithsonian National Museum of Natural History (SNMNH). In their engagements with religion, each of these organizations has simultaneously employed two distinct lines of operation: (1) defending science against anti-science religions and movements and (2) engaging science-friendly religions and the religious public. These lines of operation are driven by key objectives and supported by specific strategies and tactics to achieve those objectives. Science advocacy organizations' approaches to discussing science and religion have generated considerable controversy. Many claim that their depictions of science and religion and their religious outreach initiatives are constructive and worthwhile, while others claim that they are inappropriately weighing in on philosophical matters and unnecessarily appeasing religious people. The research for this project includes interviews with Francisco Ayala, Connie Bertka, Daniel Dennett, Barbara Forrest, Jim Miller, Ken Miller, Chris Mooney, P. Z. Myers, Massimo Pigliucci, Eugenie Scott, and Jennifer Wiseman. Based on an analysis of the research collected, this paper also provides key findings and recommendations for science advocacy organizations to consider for their ongoing and future engagements with religion.

If you're interested in reading the thesis, please contact Jason directly at jtrodrig@buffalo.edu.

What is Tampa Bay Skeptics?

Founded in 1988, Tampa Bay Skeptics is a nonprofit educational and scientific organization devoted to the critical examination of paranormal and fringe-science claims, and the dissemination of factual information about such claims. In 2004, TBS became a Special Interest Group of the Center For Inquiry-Tampa Bay.

DR. JULIA F. IRWIN
ASSISTANT PROFESSOR, HISTORY
Making the World Safe:
The American Red Cross and a Nation's Humanitarian Awakening

As the American Century dawned, more and more Americans saw the need to engage in world affairs and to make the world a safer place—not by military action but through humanitarian aid. It was a time perfectly suited for the rise of the American Red Cross. In her book, Irwin traces the ARC's history from its founding in 1881 by Clara Barton, to its rise as the government's official voluntary aid agency. Equally important, Irwin shows that the story of the Red Cross is a story of how Americans first began to see foreign aid as a key element in their relations with the world.

Practical Freethought

Thousands of your friends and neighbors in the Tampa Bay area feel the same as you. The Tampa Bay Coalition of Reason is a group of local organizations joined together to increase the growth, visibility and acceptance of nontheists throughout the area.

All of these groups share common ground, while each has its own particular emphasis and atmosphere. Some are focused on scientific inquiry and education. Others are focused on ethics and community, activism or the arts. Others monitor state/church separation and fight for your civil rights. All alike are committed to promoting the wider acceptance of a more rational and contemporary view of humanity and the universe we live in.

TampaBayCoR.org is where secular people in the Tampa Bay area can discover groups to join, activities in which to participate, events to attend and like-minded people with which to socialize. In short, we want to help those who have grown beyond religious belief to find their philosophical home.

Those nonbelievers who are not ready, or who are unable, to “come out” can take comfort in knowing that they are not the only ones who accept the reality of a 100% natural world.

For the religious community, we want them to realize that, although non-theists reject the supernatural, we share with them compassionate human values that most religious believers embrace. In most ways, we are like them; hard working, taxpaying, moral citizens who care deeply about our families, our communities, our state and our country.

Non-theists are a large minority, larger than many minorities having much more political and cultural influence than we do. Based on the US Census Bureau estimate of Florida’s 2008 population and several polls, we estimate our statewide constituency at about 2,800,000 residents (more than 400,000 in the Tampa Bay quad-county area). TampaBayCoR has organized to increase our standing in the marketplace of ideas and to take our rightful place at the table of acceptance and equal rights. We invite all nontheists to support us in our efforts by joining and actively participating in one of TBCoR’s constituent groups.

Even if you never join a group or attend a meeting you can help Florida move forward by contributing to local or national participating organizations. And you can always help to further the nontheistic community just by standing up proudly for your reality-based life among your friends and family. It’s OK to not believe in gods. And, yes—not only can you be good without a god or religion, but in most cases, far better off. Millions of us are.
