Dr. Ryan Cragun

Dr. Phil Zuckerman

Jennifer Hancock

These three fine authors have each contributed to the cause of humanity, each building unique bridges to improve the human condition as we enlarge individual human potential to meet the responsibilities we all have to ensure our common success. See Page 11 for more on them.

Phil Zuckerman is a renowned sociologist whose researches into the mechanisms in society that produce a condition of happiness, are well respected, and an important resource for all who are concerned with improving human life.

Jennifer Hancock has made a career of introducing the practical implementation of Humanist principles in everyday life. She has written extensively on the subject of happiness.

Ryan Cragun, is a sociologist at the University of Tampa whose several books have provided important insights into the role and function of religion.

The event will be held on Saturday, February 3rd with doors open at 9:30 AM and will end before 3 PM in the Octagon of the UU Congregation in Clearwater at 2470 Nursery Rd. in Clearwater. Tickets are on sale now at $20 ea. from our constituent organizations, or can be ordered at our website: www.tampabaycor.net

The avoidance of suffering and the desire for happiness, no matter how defined are a constant stimulus to human activity, and a profound concern within each human life.

Dr. Rosasco has made some singular contributions to several fields of scientific endeavor.

He has kept pace with the ever accelerating changes in the collection of knowledge that aims to enable humanity to understand our universe and ourselves.

The answers science gives about ourselves & the universe are incomparably more surprising & interesting than any mythical tale about some clash of titans or a calculating creator. Indeed, science's proud journey of exploration & discovery is humanity's finest narrative yet.

Greg is a popular speaker in the Tampa Bay area. We are privileged to have him as a member of the society and have greatly enjoyed his past contributions to our program.

Personal Reflections on a Half Century of Scientific Progress

Join us to hear physicist, Dr. Greg Rosasco reveal new insights into the scientific understanding of our world.

Greg has had a remarkable career in physics dealing with some of the cutting edge investigations of our time.

Humanists work to build a world in which happiness is the enduring criterion of all policy.

What is the Humanist Way?

- ♦ To extend a human centered approach to the critical problems of life & society.
- ♦ To encourage attitudes of kindness, compassion, tolerance & a loving generosity in human relationships, & in our treatment of all life. These attitudes help us to see ourselves in the lives of others, & encourage appreciation for the remarkable diversity of human culture & experience.
- ♦ To develop & popularize the skills of creative & critical thinking that empower people to challenge prejudice, superstition & irrationality in every area of life. Such empowerment enables the individual to reach the highest levels of achievement.
- ♦ To exalt those artistic & imaginative expressions of life which have been the source of the greatest pleasure & enlightenment, & which reflect compelling human truths. Through music, literature, art, dance, & other expressions, we embrace the essence of what it means to be human.
- ♦ To explore the grounds of ethics & morality within the unfolding history of our evolving culture. Such knowledge will enable us to become effective protagonists for the happiness of the individual person. JP

Politics: The Art of Living

On the Anniversary of the inauguration of the present regime, we invite you to reassess the health of our democracy amidst the reality of chaos and threat that seems to undermine the best of what our forbearers created.

Members are invited to participate in a brief survey to help us find a programmatic direction for the coming year. Your ideas are important.

As Humanists it is our task to discover the secret world above & within the level of conscious recognition. Using the instruments of reason, & critical thinking, we strive to be at one in understanding both the world that made us, & the one we are inventing.

Each month a new investigation thoughtfully & critically dissects a new intersection of mind & matter. Be part of it.

At present, we are a small, intimate group meeting in a neighborhood library. But we are ambitious, and hope to grow. Ideally, such small discussion groups should appear in every neighborhood. The need is as great as the potential. What is required is a few longtime humanists willing to take on the relatively small effort to secure a library meeting room once a month, post a few notices here and there (including this newsletter), and show up to lead a discussion, share a little knowledge; give something to the future.

As Isaac Asimov, former AHA president, is quoted as saying, "Since you can't take it with you, send it on ahead." Humanism is as much in need of good followership as it is of effective leadership. Now is the time to do your part in either category. We can help.

Raising Happy Children

By Phil Zuckerman

More children are "growing up godless" than at any other time in our nation's history. They are the offspring of an expanding secular population that includes a relatively new and burgeoning category of Americans called the "Nones," so nicknamed because they identified themselves as believing in "nothing in particular" in a 2012 study by the Pew Research Center.

So how does the raising of upstanding, moral children work without prayers at mealtimes and morality lessons at Sunday school? Quite well, it seems.

Far from being dysfunctional, nihilistic and rudderless without the security and rectitude of religion, secular households provide a sound and solid foundation for children, according to Vern Bengtson, a USC professor of gerontology and sociology.

He was surprised by what he found: High levels of family solidarity and emotional closeness between parents and nonreligious youth, and strong ethical standards and moral values that had been clearly articulated as they were imparted to the next generation. Full online discussion here.

For more on this and related matters, come to our Darwin Day event. See page 1.

Humanist Quotes

1/18

"Actions are right in proportion as they tend to promote happiness, wrong as they tend to produce the reverse of happiness."

– John Stuart Mill, Utilitarianism, 1863

"Always treat people as ends in themselves, never as means to an end."

– Immanuel Kant, Groundwork of the Metaphysics of Morals, 1785

"...one ought always to ask oneself what would happen if everyone did as one is doing; nor can one escape from that disturbing thought except by a kind of self-deception."

– Jean-Paul Sartre, Existentialism and Humanism, 1946

"If the gods have the will to remove evil and cannot, then they are not all-powerful. If they are neither able nor willing, they are neither all-powerful or benevolent. If they are both able and willing to annihilate evil, why does it exist?"

2017 - A Post Carbon End-of- Year Review From the World Resources Institute.

For CO₂ emissions to fall, they first have to peak. And research published this year suggests that this is already happening.

The report, produced by the US-based World Resources Institute (WRI), suggests that 49 countries – which include the UK, US, Australia, Brazil and Canada – have seen their emissions peak, representing around 36% of current global emissions. But how much time does the world collectively have left to reduce its emissions in order to avoid dangerous climate change?

At the beginning of the year, Carbon Brief published our traditional carbon budget update, revealing that just four years of current CO₂ emissions would blow what's left of the budget for a good chance of keeping global temperature rise to 1.5C.

However, in September, a new study published in Nature Geoscience proposed that there might be a little more breathing space to meet the 1.5C limit than previously thought.

As lead author Dr Richard Millar explained in a guest post, the study estimates the remaining 1.5C carbon budget from today onwards. This contrasts to previous methods which have been based on cumulative emissions to date. As a result, Millar's study put the remaining 1.5C budget at around 20 years of current emissions.

The paper caused quite a stir, with parts of the media claiming that climate models – the basis for carbon budget estimates – are “wrong” and have overstated the observed warming of the planet.

Carbon Brief factchecked these claims, showing that the model-observation comparisons in the study depend greatly on the dataset and model outputs used by the authors. The authors also published their own response with Carbon Brief, pointing out that they “present no evidence in our paper to suggest that future CO₂-induced warming under any emissions scenario will be lower than the projections given in AR5 [the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change's fifth assessment report]”.

425 million tons

The world's tropical forests can no longer be considered a carbon sink. In fact, a global rise in deforestation and land degradation has caused tropical forests to become a net emitter of carbon, a study found. It concluded that the world's rainforests had a net loss of around 425m tons of carbon from 2003 to 2014.

In other news, scientists were also forced to reconsider the role that livestock play in global emissions. In September, a study found that recent methane emissions from livestock were 11% higher than previous estimates suggested.

However, this recalculation is unlikely to seriously dent efforts to meet the climate goals of the Paris Agreement, Carbon Brief analysis revealed. It found that revised methane emissions could have decreased the remaining carbon budget for limiting warming to 1.5C by 1-2%.

2nd (or 3rd) warmest year

Despite the lack of an El Nino event to drive up global temperatures, 2017 is still shaping up to be either the second or third warmest year on record, depending on the organisation measuring temperatures. This year now seems certain to be the warmest non-El Nino year recorded.

The temperatures in 2017 are in-line with what climate models have projected and show continued rapid warming since the 1970s. This is true both in raw and adjusted temperature records, as adjustments have little impact in recent years and actually reduce long-term global warming. Read more...

Nassau County textbook challenge: "Bacteria to man evolution is not supported by science"

by Brandon Haught, Florida Citizens for Science

<http://bit.ly/2BqtVwD>

Nassau County is the first school district I'm aware of that has been faced with a citizen's challenge to topics in the schools' science instructional materials. I told you about this back in early November (Nassau County complaint: "stop promoting this scientifically inadequate theory of evolution as fact to our students"). The disgruntled citizen is 71-year-old Jay Shutt who says he retired after 40 years of teaching. His complaint to the school district earned him an official hearing in front of an appointed hearing officer Nov. 1. I obtained the materials from that hearing (Download here: Evolution Materials Nassau County). It's a lengthy PDF that contains Shutt's original complaint, the script he read from during the hearing, and the hearing officer's summary of evidence.

Here's his opening:

It is my goal to demonstrate to the Board that the material concerning evolution presented in the 3 textbooks I reviewed are not entirely accurate, objective, balanced, and noninflammatory, nor are they suited to the needs of the students.

His script is a good old fashioned romp through one quote mine after another straight out of the standard creationist playbook. It starts with attacks on the veracity of evolutionary theory, then evidence for a young earth, and by the end of the 15 page lecture he's preaching about the merits of the Bible as 100% accurate in all things. Here's his finale:

However, my hope and prayer is the Nassau Board of Education will not only mandate macro-evolution and an old earth not be taught as facts, but will allow Bibles to once again be distributed to our students. And further the Board would use its influence with the state of Florida to bring back legalized corporate prayer and Bible reading to our schools.

That's really reaching and it's not what the school board will consider at its Dec. 14 meeting. Instead, they'll consider whether to put disclaimer stickers in all of the science textbooks that feature evolution. Here's Shutt's suggested disclaimer sticker:

This book contains material that leads the reader to believe that "bacteria to man" evolution and an old earth of 4.5 billion years are proven scientific facts. Creation scientists would argue that there are dozens and dozens of scientific observations that indicated the earth is young, only several thousand years old.

Additionally, creation scientists would argue that bacteria to man evolution is impossible because (1) living things only come from living things, not from matter and energy. (2) living cells need information to live and function. That information must come from an intelligent source. It cannot come from matter and energy, and (3) life is too complex to be explained by natural selection and chance beneficial mutations. The human genome has 3 billion base pairs, and the human brain operates faster than 30 trillion calculations per second, exponentially faster than any computer. Cont. next column.

GOING APE: Florida's Battles Over Evolution in the Classroom

"William Jennings Bryan launched the creationist crusade from his home in Florida, and the state has been a battlefield in the evolution wars ever since. In Going Ape, Haught provides the definitive blow-by-blow account of the Sunshine State's ninety-year struggle over the teaching of evolution." ~ Glenn Branch, deputy director, National Center for Science Education

Thanks for your support. It means quite a bit to this old volunteer!

The recommendation the school district staff is making to the board is to "Continue using the challenged textbooks without placing a disclaimer in them." You can see that document here: Cover Sheet Agenda Statement for Textbook Challenge Nassau. However, I'm a bit worried that during the hearing, the only counterargument presented by the school district was that replacing the textbooks would be expensive.

TBS's "$1,000 Challenge"

Since 1989 TBS has been offering $1,000 to anyone able to demonstrate any paranormal phenomenon under mutually agreed-upon observing conditions. If you believe that you are able to do so, please contact TBS.

William A. Blake III of Orlando attempted to demonstrate telepathy in March 2008. [\[Full story\]](#)

Igor Simchanko, in the former Soviet republic of Belarus, attempted to predict Florida Lottery results in 2006. [\[Full story\]](#)

From his home in Prattville, Alabama, Ron Pearce took the TBS "$1,000 Challenge" by e-mail and phone in 2005, claiming the ability to diagnose medical conditions remotely. [\[Full story\]](#)

Bill Pierce, a dowser of Polaroid photographs, first took the TBS "$1,000 Challenge" in 2000. [\[Full story\]](#) And he was retested in 2002. [\[Full story\]](#)

Scott C. Frank of Homosassa, Florida, tried to win the TBS "$1,000 Challenge" at the Winter 2001-02 TBS quarterly meeting. [\[Full story\]](#)

And so it went. TBS has taken its "$1,000 Challenge" to TV a number of times. Read the details of our 1993 and 1994 TV challenges, as recounted in TBS Report.

On Rumors

*How Falsehoods Spread,
Why We Believe Them,
What Can Be Done*

CASS R. SUNSTEIN
Cousin of the New York Times bestseller Nudge

Those who spread rumors know precisely what they are doing. They are sometimes able to derail political candidates, injure companies and reputations, even damage democratic governance. And in the era of the Internet, they know more about manipulating the mechanics of false rumors—social cascades, group polarization, and biased assimilation—than you do.

Dr. Singh, “In this book, I attempt to objectively assess the validity of the various claims of different religions around the world. Most theologians will defend their own religion and criticize all others. This is the only book I am aware of that systematically critiques the blind spots of the major religions and shows the irrationality of all organized religion. I want to provoke and challenge you, if you are a member of a religion, to step back and take a critical look at your religion. I find it to be an enjoyable reference. ROK

Where did everything come from? Why are humans so biologically similar, & why do we let small differences divide us? What shall determine our destiny? Paul Singh & John R. Shook draw on the latest findings from many science realms in search of answers. As they lucidly & engagingly demonstrate, the answers science gives about ourselves & the universe are incomparably more surprising & interesting than any mythical tale about some clash of titans or a calculating creator.

This book presents research that supports the naturalistic stance that the mind is identical to the brain. The author argues that if one were to look at the idea that the mind is the brain then it follows logically that free will must be an illusion, that there can be no consciousness separate from the brain, and that there can be no substantial self that exists independently from the brain. He further argues that there can be no such thing as absolute moral responsibility and provides readers with the overall sense that the survival of the human species will depend on a scientific understanding of the human brain.

Essential

Dr. Phil
Zuckerman

Winner of the 2008 Foreword Magazine Book of the Year Award

Before he began his recent travels, it seemed to Phil Zuckerman as if humans all over the globe were “getting religion”—praising deities, performing holy rites, and soberly defending the world from sin. But most residents of Denmark and Sweden, he found, don’t worship any god at all, don’t pray, and don’t give much credence to religious dogma of any kind. Instead of being bastions of sin and corruption, however, as the Christian Right has suggested a godless society would be, these countries are filled with residents who score at the very top of the “happiness index” and enjoy their healthy societies, which boast some of the lowest rates of violent crime in the world (along with some of the lowest levels of corruption), excellent educational systems, strong economies, well-supported arts, free health care, egalitarian social policies, outstanding bike paths, and great beer.

Zuckerman formally interviewed nearly 150 Danes and Swedes of all ages and educational backgrounds over the course of fourteen months. He was particularly interested in the worldviews of people who live their lives without religious orientation. How do they think about and cope with death? Are they worried about an afterlife? What he found is that nearly all of his interviewees live their lives without much fear of the Grim Reaper or worries about the hereafter. This led him to wonder how and why it is that certain societies are non-religious in a world that seems to be marked by increasing religiosity. Drawing on prominent sociological theories and his own extensive research, Zuckerman ventures some interesting answers.

This fascinating approach directly counters the claims of outspoken, conservative American Christians who argue that a society without God would be hell on earth. It is crucial, Zuckerman believes, for Americans to know that “society without God is not only possible, but it can be quite civil and pleasant.”

Ed Golly, Chair - Al Hann, Vice chair,

See AoF Meetup for details Website: <http://aof.ngo>

AoF is a comfortable & safe place in which to find rewarding new friendships, to discover hidden potentials, & make a positive contribution to your own humanity as well as that of others. We are pleased to offer legal assistance with church state separation issues as an important focus. For many people, atheism represents the most focused & powerful criticism of the philosophical world-view with which most of us were raised. It is liberating for the same reason it attracts the enmity of those who are committed to the closed & changeless narrative of unexamined traditional beliefs.

Atheists of Florida is pleased to announce the renewal of its live outreach talk program, the Atheist Forum, every Sunday evening, from 7 to 8 pm.

The program is airing on TanTalk Radio. The broadcast is also available on the internet at TanTalk1340.com, live streaming on smart phones using the “TuneIn” application, and on the following frequencies in the Tampa Bay area – WTAN AM 1340, WZHR AM 1400, WDCF AM 1350, WTAN FM 106.1, and WZHR FM 104.3. Listeners can call 727-441-3000, where four lines await your call in of questions and comments. All programs are being archived on the AoF web site, www.talk.aof.ngo.

An Atheist Quote (or two)

Give a man a fish and he will eat for a day; teach a man to fish and he will eat for a lifetime; give a man religion and he will die praying for a fish.

Atheists of Florida is seeking guests for the Forum and will offer advertising on the program for other Freethought organizations to promote their special events or seek membership from listeners. Contact our production office at: af@talk.aof.ngo.

The Atheist Forum continues an outreach tradition begun in 1993. It affords an opportunity for members of the freethought community, now quite numerous, to have an outlet to explain their position to a broader public, and recruit new organization members. A number of well-known guests will be interviewed and take questions on, important topics of the day and new explorations of hidden aspects of human nature and the natural world. There'll be a few chuckles along the way, and local news too. Tune in and participate; give us your ideas, opinions and arguments. Celebrate the forum's open ended possibilities for expanding our community. Now is the time to make a difference: you are that difference. Tune in!

Humanist Families of Greater Tampa

Jennifer Hancock started this organization several years ago. It uniquely serves Humanist families with a variety of wonderful programs throughout the year. There is a strong emphasis on creative childrearing. Here, you can make connection with other families dealing with the problems of living in a society that is still hostile to an explicitly Humanist Way of life. Jennifer is author of several books including: The Humanist Handbook, The Humanist Approach to Happiness, & her latest book, The Bully Vaccine.

Humanist Families organizes social outings every month. These are opportunities to do something fun, socialize & enjoy each other's company. Sometimes we go to a park, sometimes a museum, sometimes we go swimming. Our group has grown over the past year to the point we now organize Tampa area outings & Manatee/Sarasota area outings every month.

Throughout the year we host parties like Darwin Day in February, World Humanist Day in June, Freethought Day at Disney in October & Carl Sagan Day in November. Among our spin off groups, is a Parenting Beyond Belief group which gets together to discuss the challenges of raising children without religion. We are on Facebook.

The mission of the Secular Coalition for Florida is to increase the visibility of & respect for non-theistic view-points in the State, & to protect & strengthen the secular character of our government as the best guarantee of freedom for all.

Bill Norsworthy, is our Florida representative. Please sign up here. Volunteer activists are wanted, needed, & appreciated!

See page 7 for more information on our Secular Coalition activities around the National day of Reason. SC wants you to represent the voice of thousands of the people of reason in the halls of power.

As our government undergoes its quadrennial crises of morphology, the secular coalition is needed to remind citizens & officials alike that ours is indeed a secular society. But to preserve its character from the predations of zealots requires your involvement.

ACLU of Greater Tampa Bay

Hi Friend of ACLU –

There are only a few days left to reach our goal of collecting one million signatures to make sure the Voter Restoration Amendment is on the November 2018 ballot.

Download, print and sign the Voter Restoration Amendment petition.

Just last week, we heard of and read stories about the thousands of returning citizens in Alabama who voted for the first time after having their voting rights restored. Having the ability to vote allows returning citizens to become full members of their communities again. If we can pull this off, we will be one step closer to giving the ability to vote back to 1.6 million Floridians.

We are grateful for your support of voting rights in our state. And, if you haven't signed the petition, it's not too late. Download, print and sign the petition. Then mail it back to us. For a list of locations you can mail-in your petitions visit our website. Floridians believe in second chances. Together, we can restore the ability to vote in Florida.

Norm R. Allen Jr.

On Monday, December 4, 2017, I hosted a showing of the documentary Contradiction, by Black atheist Jeremiah Camara. I appeared in the 2014 documentary that deals with theism – primarily Christianity – in the Black community.

The film was very well-received and there was a lively discussion that followed. Most of those in attendance were theists and two Afrocentric individuals had some defenses of theism. One man, a local college instructor, made several comments. He did not like the title of the film. He pointed out that rather than a contradiction, Black religion is a paradox.

That is to say, it might appear to be contradictory, but deeper thought reveals its conflicting truths. I disagree. Religion in general and “holy” books in particular are filled with contradictions.

Moreover, the main contradiction that the documentary sought to highlight was the large number of Black churches (estimated at 85,000) in the U.S. with the widespread poverty, suffering, ill health, etc. found among African Americans. If we spend so much time, money and prayer on spirituality, why are we at the bottom where the major quality of life indicators are concerned? That is a blatant contradiction.

Promoting Action & Unity in the Tampa Bay Area

Join the Freethought Organizations of the Tampa Bay Area: groups that promote serious secular discussion & activity about important issues in our area & beyond.

Substantive & exciting new activities are now offered to the Tampa Bay area that were not possible for most organizations before.

Every year we sponsor events as Darwin Day in February, Solstice day in December, and other activities all year long.

We are especially grateful to the national office of the United Coalition of Reason & its director, Jason Heap.

You may recall that UCoR was the major impetus to getting a large number of billboards erected in Tampa Bay & across the nation with such messages as “You can be good without God. Millions are!”

TBCoR is an alliance of groups identified with the secular / freethought / Humanist / Atheist movement.

As this momentum continues to grow, we will keep you informed of developments . JP

Positive Postcard Project: A Secular, On-Site Service Initiative

by Tee Rogers

Humanist Chaplain—BE Orlando Humanist Fellowship (a Cooperating Member of the Orlando Coalition of Reason)

Finding an on-site service project on a small budget can be a challenge. Here’s a meaningful solution and a resource site with everything you need to host this project at your next event, conference, or meeting! The Positive Postcard Project shares messages of human connection and love that can inspire, comfort, or uplift a recipient of any faith or non-faith perspective.

This is important. Many support card and note projects come from churches and other organizations that are biased towards theism and proselytizing. These cards often contain language that not only isn’t meaningful or relevant to non-theistic people, but can further victimize or even isolate them, thereby increasing their burden, and causing unnecessary grief and anxiety during their times of need.

People who identify as non-theistic are all around us, and they, too, are among those in need. They deserve resources, support, representation, comfort, care, and love. Positive Postcards engages secular communities and our secular-friendly allies by providing that support and encouragement. The project can also be hosted at public events, educating theistic faith communities about respecting the diverse perspectives of those who receive cards or letters such as these.

A person’s time of turmoil, challenge, or disadvantage should not be an opportunity to market religious belief or no preference. We don’t know the perspective of the person receiving the card and therefore should craft messages that speak to any recipient—unapologetically inclusive and loving. As non-theists, we’re empowered and emotionally intelligent to ensure that members of our shared values community are respected and supported. As Humanists, we have a responsibility to seek the means to uplift others and make the world a better place.
